

Walk Away

I learned it's best to walk away when anger takes over your day
Walk away when the heart falls and your mind races.
Keep up the presence of all the happy places.
My heart aches and then bleeds for the past that haunts me
I dream of color for the mountains rather than sea
Leaning to walk away when my heart says to fight
Knowing that deep down it eventually would be alright
Love isn't easy, nor for the faint of heart you see
And to walk away is always hard to do for me
Learning to let go, move on or to walk away has taken years to achieve
For love from those most cherished was far from received Walk away to find the light at the end of the tunnel to shine
Knowing all the love in the world can make for a life so divine
